

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method is provided for processing medical documentation for a health care provider. The method includes the step of receiving a medical source document for a health care provider into a hosting server enabled to receive the medical source document. Another
5 step is enabling a medical documentation handler to access the medical source document on the hosting server via a computer network coupled to the hosting server. A further step is facilitating the electronic creation of processed medical data based on the medical source document analyzed by a medical documentation handler. An additional step is transmitting the processed medical data to the health care provider.

10

15